Auto Dealers Object To Abolishing Sixty Inch Treads

Gay that 66 inch Axion Are Not INDIOTED IN INDIANA ELEC-Practical in This State. TION PRAUD.

Auto dealers throughout this section are vigorously opposing a movement that seems to be out toot among certain automobile manufacturers to abolish the 600 inch axle in the new makes of cars.

A letter being circulated by the National Automobile Dealers Association contains the following paragraph:

"W will put the matter in conerete form. Supposing, for instance, that your concern had the opportunity of taking the agency for a certain make of automobiles; everything was satisfactory and you desired the agency. Before signing the contract you disgovered that the concern did not! make cars with 66" axles, but with only 56" axles. Would the fact that they did not make cars with 60° trend make it impossible for you to take the agency for the line? In other words, is there any market in your part of the State for 56" trend cars!" The agents claim that it is not practical to operate a 50 inch trend on account of the condition of the roads throughout this section. The ruts being made by wagons with 60 inch axles are very deep in placed especially where the roads are sand, this condition takes more gasoline and oil and is harder on the car and on the driver, beddes taking more power. To sum up it practically makes a 56 inch cread car. masaleable and many of the dealers state they would refuse to sign a contract to hundle cure of that character.

-anteres Has Susses og in Oversoming "After Bliff-ness" Pelfowing Wounds.

What is called "after stiffness," or the condition of immobility in joints and muscles which so often follows the healing of a fracture or wound, is one of the most difficult problems which confront medical men treating the wounded in Great Britain and in France. The treatment is a matter of especially grave concern to the subject himself, since on the result depends his future usefulness no & so dier or as a worker.

At the military hospital in Calais Professor Guermontprez of Lille university has received much praise for the treatment employed by him, not a new one, but one which has been very successful. He begins his treatment of "after stiffness" while the healing is going on and before the stiffness has in reality set in. Special splints are used on all broken bones. They are made of very lightwood and are not allowed to interfers with the movement of any joint. Massage is an important part of Professor Guermontpres' treatment.

In cases where the patients have been submitted to long exposure before any treatment is possible a specief apparates known as merhanethurspeutic apparatus is used. At the military hospital in Calais, as in many others, special workrooms and forges have been installed in the basement, where instruments are constructed to looses rigid joints at various parts of the limbs.

New Shoes

We have received in the last few days several cases of new slippers-These are by far the prettiest Wichert and Fox slippers we have had this year. The very cut and lines stand out so prominently in them, that they are readily and easily distinguished from the ordinary lines you will see in most stores.

The way they "hug" the foot, the ease and grace they lend in walking, make them a pleasure and a beauty that cannot be had in any other shoe.

The wearing qualities of these two noted shoes was never questioned, as one lady customer expressed it: Even if they did not wear as long. I had rather buy two pair than only one of any shoe I have ever tried to wear."

NEED OF GOOD IMPRESSION

Be careful what you do or say is the presence of the "new American." Your every act may be reported to some family in far-off Italy, or Poland, and reported by that family to others. And how you dress and how you do your hair may be reported, too, the style copied by no one knows how many pretty Italian girls.

All this, and other information concerning American people and their customs is carried abroad by means of the millions of letters sent to the old countries from this country each year. Residents of foreign countries get much of their information concerning the United States from these letters, written, many, of them, by members of their own tamilies who have come to these shores And these "new Americans," who write the letters, gain their impressions of the "new country" from observing the people about them and talking with those with whom they come in contact. Thus, in a way, we are all "foreign missionaries," and it behooves us to be on our good (Missionary Meeting at Presbybehavior so that the people of other lands who may themselves be planning to come here shall hear only The Ladies Missionary Society good reports.

This point opens up a new and interesting line of thought in connec tion with the general subject of immigration and the question of what our attitude toward the immigrant shall be .-- Waterbury American.

How Georgia Increased Its Revenue Without Increasing The Tax Burdens Of The People in Alabama and when he went to results in this state. . New York to discuss a bond issue with capitalists he was askrelative to the financial affairs of was whether or not the state had not reached its constitutional tax limit. "The questions were difficult to answer," says the governor in his message to the legislature.

And then the governor explains how the taxable values were raised in Georgia, how increased revenue was received, without raising the tax rate, or increasing the tax burdens of the peo-

"In the meantime the legislature passed the equalization law, and the rate was reduced to four and one-half mills," says the gov-

"In 1914, under the operation of this law taxable values inereased in excess of $85,000,000. This sum represented the net result after many decreases of returns ordered by the equalizers. It is estimated that two-thirds of this increase came from property never on the tax books before. The additional returns from money, notes and accounts went into the millions and some localities protested because mortgages were taxed for the first

"Recause of the law, the great bulk of the tax-payers in Georgin are paving less taxes than before. County tax rates have been lowered, the state tax rate has been cut and largely for reason that those who have failed to contribute heretofore are now forced to hear their part of the hurden.

"Whoever opposes this law simply declares his opposition to the constitution which it attempts to enforce. It is unfair that burdens should not be commensurate with benefit and that the evas ion by one person of his duty should enure to the injury of his

What Georgia has done in the way of equalizing taxation ought to be done in Alabama. For years feeble efforts have been peade, but either the law was inadequate, or else those who were put in power to enforce it failed for other reasons that need not he mentioned.

But, as the governor of Geor. FAMILY AVOIDS gia tenly says, "it is unfair that burdens should not be commensurate with benefit, and that the evasion by one person of his duty should enure to the injury of By Bolog Comtantly Supplied With his neighbor," That is well.

ed that the tax rate could be reduced if the burdens of taxation were properly distributed, and it has suggested that a means to an and-to a more equitable distribution of the burdens of taxation -and the property tax be upon the full value-not sixty per cent as now-as the full value could be more easily and readily determined, and there could be no possible chance of quibbling over the true or actual value o taxable property.

But if the Georgia law has nebeen the means of increasing the revenues of Georgia to extent as to relieve the financial embarramment of the state with When Governor Slaton became out adding to the burdens of the tovernor of Georgia it was honest tax-payers, the legislathought to be necessary to sell ture of Alabama might well find bonds, just as is proposed now in way to secomplish the same

" Everybody knows, who knows anything, that the tax burdens ed some embarrassing questions are unequally borne in Alabama. and the legislature, the Journal Georgia, not the least of which is sure, will find a way to relieve the present situation and bring about fairer and more equitable

> But Governor Slaton made other auggestions and remanendations in his message which might well he takèn home by the Ala bama legislature. Discussing the necessity for economy in the management of the public as private business affairs, because of the European war, which he says may be long continued, Governor Slaton sava:

"Cuder similar eireumstances it would behoove a citizen in private life to adjust his expenditures to his income. The business min would delay minking contemplated improvements.

"The rule that would apply to sound business man would apdy to the state. The legislator must not toront that he is no igent expending money of someonly else and he has no right to spend it without the expected approval of his principals.

"It may be difficult to refuse be importunities of deserving institutions seeking larger beeogultion and a wider field of usefuluess, but duty and compliance are not always harmenious, and I suggest that few sensors have been so inapportune for generun ameropriations."

What Governor Blaten has said to the Georgia legislature will aply with equal force to the Alabanja legislature.

In fact, retremelement is the estehword in every state where legislatures are meeting at this time. The governor of Penusylvania ent the general appropriation bill this year in that state over $6,000,000, and many institutions like the deal, dumb and blind and insane hospitals, etc., were included in the cut.

If cutting expenses and the edoption of a more economical administration of the state goverument are necessary in other States, vertainly conditions in Alabama call for the most rigid economy in all departments.

TEACH THE YOUNG FILIPING

American Educators Are Doing a Won-

Within a few years of America's son of the Philippines 600,000 right Filipino boys and girls were found in schoolhouses mattered all ever the islands studying modern textbooks illustrated from Philippine life. Fifteen hundred American schoolteschers had come over ten thousand miles to the debilitating e climate of the islands to enable these boys and girls to know the facts of a history, the wonders of life, the accrets of healthful living.

Then these young people told the story to their parents, who had never been educated under the Spanish regime. In fact, to be educated was the privilege only of the estrado, or upper classes. And these Filinino children told their parents they must open the windows of their nine (straw-thatched) huts at night and let in the fresh air; and that it was not sanitary for each member of the family in turn to amoke the long, black family cigar which was sumpended from the ceiling. They told them, too, that water must be boiled to prevent the spread of typhoid, which had steadily decimated the population .- Christian Herald.
